

Jacquie Buckley, RN, BSN, MBA

Clinical Educator, Medical Simulation Corporation

Jacquie entered nursing 12 years ago after providing eight years of economic development and business consulting for small entrepreneurial ventures affiliated with Texas A&M University. As an RN, her focus is critical care and education, serving on the faculty of Blinn College and as the clinical educator for St. Joseph Regional Medical Center in Bryan, Texas. She continues to work as a bedside RN in the ICU for Kaiser Permanente.

Jacquie is passionate about nurse empowerment through evidenced-based research and presently is a clinical educator with Medical Simulation Corporation. She teaches throughout California, currently focusing on the Surviving Sepsis campaign with emphasis on interactive simulation
